

Welcome to the Clare PPN newsletter for July 2018.

Thank you to everyone who turned up for an inspiring evening with Chas Jewett last month. She certainly fired us up while sharing her experience at the South Dakota pipeline protests. The key message was not to wait for someone else to fix everything, YOU need to do it!

We also had a successful free training event with Martina Neylon to help community groups utilise online newsletters and surveys. In a world that is moving increasingly online it is vital that we embrace every tool available to reach out to our communities, so well done to all that attended.

If you are curious about what we get up to in general you are in luck because the Clare PPN work report for April to June is available to download here: Clare PPN Work Report - April to June 2018
